About this test

The English Language, Literature, and Composition: Content Knowledge test is designed to assess whether an examinee has the broad base of knowledge and competencies necessary to be licensed as a beginning teacher of English in a secondary school. The 120 multiple-choice questions are based on the material typically covered in a bachelor's degree program in English and English education.

The test covers literature and reading, the English language, and composition and rhetoric.

: Sample Test Questions English Language, Literature, and Composition: Content Knowledge (0041)

The sample questions that follow illustrate the kinds of questions in the test. They are not, however, representative of the entire scope of the test in either content or difficulty. Answers with explanations follow the questions.

Directions: Each of the questions or statements below is followed by four suggested answers or completions. Select the one that is best in each case.

Questions 1–2 are based on the following poem.

When I was a child I knew red miners dressed raggedly and wearing carbide lamps.
I saw them come down red hills to their camps
dyed with red dust from old Ishkooda mines.

- (5) Night after night I met them on the roads,
or on the streets in town I caught their glance;
the swing of dinner buckets in their hands,
and grumbling undermining all their words.

I also lived in low cotton country
(10) where moonlight hovered over ripe haystacks,
or stumps of trees, and coppers' rotting shacks,
with famine, terror, flood, and plague near by,
where sentiment and hatred still held sway
and only bitter land was washed away.

— Margaret Walker

1. In the octave, the poet recalls

- (A) the discontent of the miners
- (B) the happiness of the miners
- (C) the efficiency and competence of the miners
- (D) a conversation between a child and miners

2. The last three lines suggest that “cotton country” (line 9) is a place where
- (A) only the land washes away; the hatred, terror, flood, and plague remain
 - (B) all the bitter aspects of life such as hatred, terror, flood, and plague were washed away with the land
 - (C) all the troubles and discontentment such as hatred, terror, flood, and plague are gone once the land is washed away
 - (D) in a land where there are many problems, it will require a flood to rid society of the evils of famine, terror, and plague

3. Grammar may be taught in two main ways — by experience with discourse that entails the varieties of word forms and sentence construction, or by analyzing dummy sentences and diagramming parts. Plentiful discursive experience is what really teaches grammar, for it exercises judgment and provides language intake, whereas formal grammar study has been proved irrelevant. Politics more than pedagogy retards the changing of the curriculum to fit this truth.

The author of the passage above argues that

- (A) using language in a wide variety of situations improves grammar
- (B) good judgment can be improved by studying the rules of formal grammar
- (C) analyzing and diagramming provide exercise in logical thinking
- (D) formal study of grammar improves writing ability

Sample Test Questions

4. The book announced an insane world of dehumanization through terror in which the individual was systematically obliterated by an all-powerful elite. Its key phrases — Big Brother, doublethink, Newspeak, the Ministry of Peace (devoted to war), the Ministry of Truth (devoted to lies), the Ministry of Love (devoted to torture) — burned their way at once into the modern consciousness.

The passage above discusses

- (A) E.M. Forster’s A Passage to India
- (B) Thomas Pynchon’s V.
- (C) George Orwell’s 1984

Questions 5–6 refer to the following passages.

- (A) If the rude throng pour with furious pace,
And hap to break thee from a friend’s embrace,
Stop short; nor struggle through the crowd
in vain,
But watch with careful eye the passing train.
- (B) There lived a wife at Usher’s Well,
And a wealthy wife was she;
She had three stout and stalwart sons,
And sent them o’er the sea.
- (C) She thanked men, — good! but thanked Somehow — I know not how — as if she ranked
My gift of a nine-hundred-years-old name
With anybody’s gift. Who’d stoop to blame
This sort of trifling?
- (D) Upon the maple leaves
The dew shines red,
But on the lotus blossom
It has the pale transporence of tears.

When they were offered the choice between Rome and London, an overwhelming majority chose Rome. Then preparations began in earnest. In the months that followed, the students’ enthusiasm escalated until the day the plane finally took off, carrying them toward an experience they would remember forever.

English Language, Literature, and Composition: Content Knowledge (0041)

Answers

1. The correct answer is A. In Margaret Walker’s poem, the octave recalls the poet’s awareness of the discontent of the miners; she caught the “grumbling undermining all their words.”

2. The correct answer is A. This is no sentimental picture of a rural idyll. The poet knows that life is hard for those who must wrest a living from the earth. Miners and farmers share this bitter truth and learn to live with it. They live in a world where “famine . . . and plague” are ever near.

3. Choice A is the best expression of the author’s argument. The author maintains that “plentiful discursive experience” is the most effective teacher of grammar. In this context, “discursive” experience means experience with discourse—that is, speech or texts that communicate ideas for some purpose and not merely as an exercise. The author argues that students learn the rules of grammar as part of the process of learning to understand the meaning of diverse texts.

4. The correct answer is C. The passage describes the themes and key phrases of Orwell’s 1984.

5. The correct answer is B. The ballad stanza is a quatrain of alternating tetrameter and trimeter lines rhyming abcb.

6. The correct answer is C. The lines are from Browning’s dramatic monologue “My Last Duchess.” One distinguishing characteristic of such a poem is that it consists of the words of a single character who reveals in his speech his own nature as well as the dramatic situation. Here, the Duke is displeased by his wife’s failure to value his “gift of a nine-hundred-years-old name.” He reads her graciousness in accepting gifts from others as a devaluing of his gift.

7. The correct answer is C. The words in each pair sound alike despite their differences in spelling and meaning. They are homophones.

8. The correct answer is B, which is a typical definition of traditional phonics instruction. Choice C is a very general description of whole-language instruction, and A and D represent potential strategies for increasing reading comprehension.

9. Choice B is the best answer. Because the adjective clause “who do not speak French” is not set off by commas in sentence I, it is restrictive and therefore essential to the meaning of the sentence. In this case, the subject of the sentence — “Americans who do not speak French” — would be simply “Americans” if the adjective clause were deleted. Since “Americans who do not speak French” is clearly a subset of all Americans, choice A cannot be correct. The statement includes nothing to support choice C and contradicts choice D.

10. Choice A is the best answer. In sentence II, the adjective clause “who do not speak French” is set off by commas, and it is therefore nonrestrictive. Grammatically, it provides additional information about the subject, “Americans,” but its omission would not essentially change the meaning of the sentence. The sentence makes the statement that, as a total group, Americans do not speak French and are at a disadvantage in Paris, untrue though that statement may be. Choices B, C, and D either state or imply that some Americans speak French; therefore, these statements cannot be correct.

11. The sentences illustrate how drastically meaning can be changed by the presence or absence of commas. In this case, the meaning of the sentences changes dramatically depending on whether the adjective clauses are nonrestrictive (not essential to the meaning of the sentence) or restrictive (essential to the meaning of the sentence). Since these semantic differences are indicated by commas, the correct choice is A.

12. The correct answer is D. Holistic evaluation is based on the premise that the overall impact of an essay depends on the integration of different elements of writing, such as organization, development, sentence structure, word choice, and mechanics. Holistic evaluators assign a single score to a student essay based on the total effect to which these elements contribute. Holistic evaluation does not rely on a count of errors, as described by choice A, nor does it focus exclusively on one or two specific writing skills, as do the methods of evaluation suggested by choices B and C.

13. Choice B is the best answer. Paragraph I describes three houses standing in a row and relates them to one another according to where in that row each is situated. The words “next to” and “adjacent” are typical of the kinds of words used in descriptions of spatial relationships.

14. Choice A is the best answer. Paragraph II describes a series of events that take place over the course of several months. Words and phrases such as “Weeks before,” “When,” “Then,” and “In the months that followed” relate events sequentially.

15. Choice D is the best answer. The organization of paragraph III reflects an order of increasing importance. The features of the car are arranged from the one that should least affect the prospective buyer’s decision (appearance) to the one that should most influence the buyer’s decision (price). Words such as “more” and “Most” help establish the comparative importance of each feature.
